October Graduation Ceremonies 2013

The Chancellor, Her Honour the Honourable Sally Thomas AM, presiding

Darwin Convention Centre
Friday 11 October 2013
The Graduation Ceremony

Students participating in university graduation ceremonies join a rich tradition, which dates back to the 12th Century. The ceremony, presided over by the Chancellor, serves as the official conferral of awards obtained by students. Prior to the ceremony they are “graduands” – those eligible to graduate - but upon conferral they become graduates.

Academic dress is comprised of a gown, and depending on the level of award, a stole or hood and a treacher or bonnet. In line with British university graduation tradition, the Charles Darwin University Chancellor’s robes are embroidered with gold thread, while the Vice-Chancellor’s robes are embroidered with silver. The official regalia worn by members of the Academic Procession reflect the diversity of qualifications and universities represented - the hoods worn by graduating students identify them as a Charles Darwin University graduate in their chosen discipline.

The official conferral of awards takes place during the ceremony and is undertaken by the Chancellor. After the official conferral of awards, each student will be individually acknowledged and presented with their award. This public acknowledgement is a very important part of the ceremony - it gives the graduate an opportunity to be congratulated on their achievement and it also serves to validate the student’s graduate status.

The Chancellor’s Chair

The Chancellor’s chair was a gift to the University from the Australian National University in 2009, and was made by Mr Timothy Foster. Mr Foster is a professional furniture maker and teacher with over 30 years’ experience in industry, and divides his time between working for commission and teaching. The chair is made from Delinia timber, which is a species native to New Guinea, where it was sustainably sourced and certified by the Forest Stewardship Council. It was chosen for its rich colour, fine grain, stability and strength, and also its relevance in proximity to Darwin.

The Vice-Chancellor’s and Deputy Chancellor’s chairs were made in 2011 by Mr Matt Davidson. Mr Davidson is a local furniture craftsman and builder whose work can be seen throughout Darwin, including the CDU Chancellery building and the Darwin Convention Centre. These chairs were designed to complement the Chancellor’s chair and are made from Silky Oak. This timber was chosen for its contrasting colour, although the figure and grain are very similar to the Chancellor’s chair.
The Seasons Fanfare

The Seasons Fanfare was commissioned by Charles Darwin University to coincide with its 25th Anniversary. Composed by Dr Leif Sundstrup, the work celebrates both the diverse Territory seasons and the celebration of the university ritual with understated transformations representing the Darwinian principals of life. Although a modern work in contraction, the fanfare is both accessible and memorable, framing the academic environment and lasting tradition of the Charles Darwin University.

The Fanfare represents both the antiquity and grandeur of university life, based on three recurring and transforming themes: The University, The Dignitaries, and The Seasons. Amongst the developing musical subjects throughout the fanfare can be heard distinct representations of the seasons including ‘the build up’ with thunder storms, slow moving breezes of the tranquil dry, and a hint of the Darwin’s Finches (Galápagos finches) which played an important part in his theories.

The work is written in a traditionally classical style to reflect the long and important history of the Charles Darwin University and its maturation over the past twenty-five years.

The Mace

For thousands of years the mace has been used as a symbol of government. Originally a weapon in the shape of a club, often spiked, it has evolved to become a decorative and ceremonial object of great value and beauty. The ceremonial mace is documented to have been used since the 16th Century. Carried by a Mace Bearer, it is intended to represent the protection of a person of authority, such as reigning monarchs and religious leaders. Oxford University began using a mace for ceremonial occasions in the late 16th Century and Cambridge University adopted a mace in 1626.

The mace is traditionally a gift, and the Charles Darwin University Mace was gifted from Flinders University Council in 2010. Glenice Lesley Matthews was commissioned to design and make the University Mace. Glenice Matthews, well known for her work as a silversmith, designed and made the Mace for Edith Cowan University.

Work on the design for the CDU Mace began in late 2010 and final approval of the design was given by the Chancellor in early 2011. It incorporates images of a “flame of knowledge” linking to the traditional use of firesticks as a way of passing on knowledge, Charles Darwin’s telescope and the pandanus. The CDU brand features strongly on a tropical timber shaft with bands of sterling silver and yellow gold.

Before completing the piece, however, Glenice Matthews passed away. Completion of the project was entrusted to Samuel Farmer, a silversmith who worked with Glenice for more than 20 years. In 1984, he designed and made the Ceremonial Mace and President’s Medallion for Pittsburg State University, Kansas, USA.

The Mace of Charles Darwin University represents the authority of the University Council and its head, the Chancellor, and was first used in May Graduation Ceremonies in 2013.
A Message from the Chancellor

As Chancellor of Charles Darwin University it is an honour and a privilege to congratulate the graduands of 2013.

Based on 50 years of education tradition, Charles Darwin University was formed through the merger of the Northern Territory University, Centralian College, the Northern Territory Rural College and the Menzies School of Health Research. This dynamic institution has grown into a place of learning for an increasing number of Territorians and people from across our nation and the world.

Charles Darwin University offers an increasingly flexible approach to education, with a wide range of study options, high standards of teaching and an engaging learning environment. This is a university that aims to inspire its students to acquire the skills and knowledge to change their worlds for their own good and the good of the community.

As well as being a celebration of knowledge, graduation ceremonies allow students to share their pride and satisfaction in achieving their goals with their family, friends, and the University staff who have supported and encouraged them throughout their studies.

Graduation should not be a farewell to Charles Darwin University. We look forward to welcoming back our graduates as members of the Alumni or through continuing formal studies and to the many symposia, lectures, concerts and events held at the University each year.

Congratulations again to the graduates of 2013. We have no doubt we will be hearing of your achievements in your work and the community in the future.

Her Honour the Honourable Sally Thomas AM
Chancellor
A Message from the Vice-Chancellor

This is a very important event in your life as you graduate from Charles Darwin University. You will have grown in knowledge and understanding during your time as a student at the University and, by making the most of your university experiences will make a difference not only to your own future and that of your family, but importantly to the Northern Territory and the community in which you live and work.

You are part of a dynamic and rapidly changing world particularly in the generation of new knowledge and innovative approaches to solving complex globally relevant problems – ongoing change is quite simply part of life. Change also provides opportunities and challenges that I hope you will embrace and as a result make a real contribution to the adaptive and evolving society in which we live. Remember Charles Darwin, the namesake of our University, once said: “It is not the strongest of the species that survive, not the most intelligent, but the one most responsive to change.”

We live in an age where information on any subject is growing at an ever-increasing rate and technology is rapidly changing the way we live, work and enjoy ourselves. To respond to this changing environment, and to be a successful contributor to it, you must continue to learn and to strive to apply what you have learned to the challenges you face. I hope your time at Charles Darwin University has given you a thirst for lifelong learning and that you will be open to new ideas, and to doing things differently and for the better in the years ahead.

As a graduate of Charles Darwin University, you join the Alumni of a university that provides vibrant learning, life-changing experiences and graduating individuals with the ability to be excellent thinkers, workers and members of society: a university that equips its graduates with the generic skills to thrive in a complex world.

I hope you have enjoyed your university experience and that you will continue to learn and, through your words and actions, contribute to the development and reputation of Charles Darwin University, a university that aspires to work with its alumni, wherever they may be, to provide an enriching experience.

This ceremony is one of celebration; you have achieved a significant milestone and we are proud of you. We join with your family and friends in saying “congratulations” and best wishes for a bright and rewarding future.

Thesis Title: The Contribution of Influenza and Other Respiratory Viruses to the Burden of Pneumonia Among Indigenous Children in the Top End of the Northern Territory

Indigenous children suffer high rates of pneumonia despite introduction of new vaccines. We aimed to determine the contribution of influenza - a vaccine preventable disease - to this disease burden. A hospital-based prospective study was conducted. Compared to non-Indigenous children, Indigenous children in the Top End of the Northern Territory have higher rates of radiological pneumonia, of bacterial carriage in the nasopharynx and of hospitalised influenza infection. They also have higher prevalence of comorbid conditions that indicate influenza vaccination according to current guidelines. Indigenous children have greater exposure to other risk factors for respiratory illness such as environmental tobacco smoke, than non-Indigenous children. The hospitalisation of Indigenous children is more costly and more severe. Indigenous children in the Top End should be considered for targeted annual influenza vaccination.

Thesis Title: The Relationship between Expectancies, Choice and Gambling Behaviour

This thesis examines the ability of gambling motivations to explain gambling behaviour. A three-wave longitudinal community-based survey was employed to examine the role of economic, emotional, and social reasons for gambling. The findings from the first study revealed these three aspects of gambling motivations uniquely predicted gambling frequency, whereas only the emotion oriented motivations were related to gambling problems. One of the notable findings of the second study was that changes in emotion oriented motivations positively related to changes in gambling frequency for at-risk gamblers. In addition, the final study revealed that low risk gamblers, who transitioned to an increased level of risk 2 years later, rated the emotion dimensions of gambling motivation significantly higher, at Wave 1, than those who remained at low risk. Taken together, the findings indicate that emotional reasons for gambling play an important role in sustaining gambling behaviour and should be considered as an integral part of gambling harm minimisation initiatives.

Thesis Title: Evaluation of Volume Status, Haemodynamics and Microcirculatory Flow in Adult Patients with Severe Falciparum Malaria

Severe malaria is almost universally managed in the rural tropics and the case fatality rate remains unacceptably high; interventions to improve these dismal outcomes must be tailored to the resource-poor setting. Fluid therapy is a simple, inexpensive clinical intervention and may improve or exacerbate the patient’s clinical course. However this aspect of supportive care has been poorly studied in adults with malaria. In this thesis I examine the pathophysiology of severe malaria with a particular focus on the assessment of volume status and fluid therapy. I also explore how more efficient patient triage might facilitate the delivery of life saving supportive care.

Thesis Title: Spatial and Behavioural Ecology of Hawksbill Turtles Nesting on Groote Eylandt, Northern Australia

Although hawksbill turtles are classified critically endangered, their ecology remains poorly documented. This is particularly true for the populations nesting in northern Australia. I examined the nesting ecology and spatial behaviour of hawksbill turtles at Groote Eylandt using beach surveys and at-sea bio-telemetry. I also developed a novel processing approach of global applicability for optimal quantification of animal home ranges from Argos positions that is valuable in the design of marine protected areas. Post-breeding, turtles migrated to foraging sites on the Australian continental shelf, primarily in coastal areas and offshore near coral reef platforms. Water temperature, light, seafloor depth and reproductive events induced important shifts in habitat utilisation and diving patterns. With 600 hawksbill turtles nesting annually on Groote Eylandt, my findings on hawksbill turtle spatial ecology are crucial to help protect this internationally significant breeding population.

Thesis Title: Not Seen, Not Heard: The Invisibility of Child and Family Health Nurses in Their Role of Safeguarding Children in The Northern Territory

This study aimed to develop mechanisms for Child and Family Health nurses (CFHN) to engage with child protection workers and other relevant professionals to safeguard children through improved services to vulnerable families. An action research approach was used to address any barriers to this enhanced role, however complex political and bureaucratic changes impeded this approach. An explanatory case study which included interviews with key informants provided data for a critique of the practice directions and policy environment of the health and social care services available to vulnerable families. The ability of CFHN in the NT to extend their role to support vulnerable families remains problematic without the necessary human and financial resources. Interdisciplinary practices across health and social care services remain limited and there is little local cross-agency understanding of the potential of the CFHN role.
