

Nathan Ian Kernich

Our collective future depends on our engagement in education and the continuity of our learning throughout life. I was born in Darwin and have been educated in the Northern Territory. My experiences as a construction industry Business Manager and now with the Department of Education have been a journey of continuous improvement.

As a member of the student council, I will bring a wealth of insight from my workplaces in business and education, and now with a voice framed through the lens of an external student completing a Bachelor of Business at Charles Darwin University.
