

Expression of Interest for CDU-HREC Volunteer Position: Experienced Researchers

Research is major strength of Charles Darwin University, and the University prides itself on research carried out that benefits the Northern Territory's people, animals, and environment.

The Human Research Ethics Committee (HREC) of the Charles Darwin University reviews projects and other activities undertaken at the University which involve research conducted with or about people. The committee consists of a mixture of University staff and community members covering various areas of expertise and membership categories as determined by the National Statement on Ethical Conduct in Human Research.

The University is currently seeking applications from CDU academics who are:

- Experienced with research processes and proposals,
- Prepared to express their views,
- Experienced in ethical issues involving human research in the areas of social science, environmental management, law, business, health and education.
- Available to attend scheduled CDU-HREC Meetings OR low risk committee meetings

The HREC meets seven times each year (on a Wednesday, approximately every six weeks from 9am until approximately midday, depending on the number and quality of projects).

Whilst members receive no remuneration, the responsibilities are not onerous, and the experience can be extremely rewarding. The meetings are held at CDU Casuarina Campus: however, they can also be attended via Zoom.

For more information, visit Human research ethics | Charles Darwin University \(cdu.edu.au\)

To express your interest, please complete the Expression of Interest form:

Name of contact person/s: Hayley Germaine or A/Prof Robyn Williams
E. humanethics@cdu.edu.au | T. 08 8946 6063