

THE SYNONYM TWIST

BASED ON A TRUE STORY!

STUDENT ACADEMIC INTEGRITY
- EPISODE FOUR -

COPY! CUT! SYNONYMS! PASTE! COPY! MOVE! SYNONYMS! CUT! CUT! SYNONYMS! PASTE! COPY! MOVE! RIGHT COPY!

A FEW DAYS LATER IN THE LECTURER'S OFFICE...

THE CONSEQUENCES:

Copying someone's work even when changing some words is a serious breach of academic integrity. Even though the student had no previous breaches, the issue was escalated by the Unit Coordinator to the Head of School. The HoS determined that the student had committed the breach due to misunderstanding and inexperience. The student was allowed to resubmit the assessment for a maximum of a pass grade.

Gee! I can see that academic writing is more about expressing ideas rather than shuffling other people's words around. I need help with this. I'll contact the lecturer at ALLSP for advice.
